

Why is Collaboration Key?

These lists of data shows why collaboration is an important from the moon landing class experiment

Pie chart

This pie chart shows the difference of people who has a higher group score than individual score

Bar Graph

This bar graph shows the differences between those who didn't survive and those did individually and in groups

Average score

According to the moon landing class experiment the average personal score was 40.78 while the group one was 26.86

Analysis

With all these data it shows that is better to collaborate with other people in order to increase your chance of success. Even though most people did survive alone, most of them also have their score increase in a group.

Conclusion

In conclusion collaboration is an important skill to have, increasing the chance of success. Due to having a team that works together and solving problems